

Please do NOT allow cell phone use on airplanes in flight. I fly every week on business and cannot bear the thought of multiple people loudly talking on their cell phones for the entire flight. Most, if not all of these calls can easily wait until landing. High speed internet access on planes would be a great productivity enhancer for most business travelers. Since this is silent, it would not be disruptive to other passengers and would still allow travelers to communicate with their colleagues on the ground. It will also virtually eliminate the need for loud, obnoxious cell phone calls in flight.
